The Type 2 Diabetes E-Learning course – optimising medicines for adults with type 2 diabetes

The Type 2 Diabetes E-Learning course is now formally endorsed by NICE

The Type 2 Diabetes, was developed jointly with the Eastern Academic Health Science Network, has been formally endorsed by NICE. The NICE Endorsement Programme recognises resources produced by external organisations that support the implementation of NICE guidance and the use of quality standards. View on the NICE website here.

Our diabetes e-learning course will now carry a NICE endorsement statement. It will also be signposted to from the relevant NICE guidance and quality standard webpages and listed on the NICE endorsement webpage.

Users of the endorsed diabetes e-learning will have the reassurance that it supports implementation of the NICE guidance recommendations.

In December 2015 NICE published updated guidelines on the management of type 2 diabetes in adults. The aim of this course is to update practitioners on the content of the guidelines, and to illustrate how the principles of medicines optimisation can be used to improve patient care, safety and outcomes.

This e-learning supports NICE guideline recommendations relating to medicines optimisation for adults with type 2 diabetes. It also supports statements 2, 4, 5 and 6 in the NICE quality standard for diabetes in adults and statement 1 in the NICE quality standard for medicines optimisation
